Halitosis is not a laughing matter

Many people think that bad breath is embarrassing and can cause a loss of confidence in certain situations. In addition, bad breath is a sign of oral health problems, which can affect communication and damage a person's good image. Fortunately, there are many ways to eliminate bad breath.

Causes of bad breath

Some types of food

Some types of food leave behind residue in the mouth after eating each meal, causing bacteria to grow and resulting in bad breath. Foods with strong odors, such as garlic, onions, and certain types of spices that are consumed, can affect the smell of breath.

Smoking

Smoking cigarettes or chewing tobacco, which have strong and unpleasant odors, can increase the temperature in the oral cavity and cause damage to the tissues. The presence of bacteria, which contributes to severe bad breath, is also increased.

Dry Mouth

Saliva helps rinse out leftover food debris in the mouth. If there is a small amount of saliva, leftover foods can cause bad breath. Side effects from taking certain medications can lead to dry mouth and indirectly cause bad breath.

Oral Health and Gum Problems

When you do not brush your teeth, clean your tongue, or use dental floss, food particles can get stuck in your mouth. Bacteria then thrive on these food particles, causing bad breath. Furthermore, this increases the risk of developing gum problems. If you wear dental appliances or dentures, it is important to regularly clean them and replace your toothbrush every 3 months or as

Did you know? There are bacteria in the mouth.
Up to 50,000 million!

One of the main reasons why you have bad breath is Accumulation of various bacteria Caused by not cleaning your mouth well enough

What type of bacteria causes bad breath?

According to Scientific American, the bacteria that produce gas can be found on the tongue and the bottom of the mouth. This gas is composed of sulfur compounds, such as hydrogen sulfide and methyl mercaptan, which are the main contributors to the foul odor, similar to rotten eggs or rotten cabbage. Brushing your teeth, using dental floss, and mouthwash can help eliminate these bacteria and provide fresh breath. However, they can only temporarily solve the problem of bad breath, as these bacteria can return and multiply over time.

The accumulation of bacteria in the mouth not only causes bad breath but also serves as the origin of various diseases.

It undermines personal image and lacks confidence.
